	Bayeux Tapestry
1	The small French town of Bayeux is famous throughout the world as the home of the Bayeux tapestry. This amazing piece of stitching is nearly a thousand years old and, although it is called a tapestry, it can be more accurately described as a historical record of the battle between William, Duke of Normandy, and Harold, King of England, which led to the Norman invasion of England in 1066. Stitches in different coloured wools outline the principal characters in these events, ending with the death of Harold, who was hit in the eye by an arrow. William has been known as William the Conqueror since that date, when he took over as King of England.
	The first written reference to the tapestry can be found in a list of the contents of Bayeux Cathedral in the year 1476, but it is known to date back much further than that. However, there is still some mystery as to why it was made, and who paid for it. One group of historical scholars believe that it was the idea of Queen Matilda, wife of William the Conqueror, and that she was actually part of the group of women who made it. According to these historians, she stitched it, assisted by her ladies-in-waiting and her other maids and servants, and so it was made in France.
	However, much more recent research, carried out in the 20th century, seems to prove that it was William's half-brother Odo, who wanted the tapestry to be made. Odo became Earl of Kent after the victory over Harold, and assisted William in ruling England at that time. It seems probable that the tapestry was actually made in England – there is evidence to suggest that the style of the stitches, and the materials used, come from England rather than France. It was then sent by sea to Bayeux, to be displayed in Bayeux Cathedral in 1077.
•	The original tapestry was about 70 metres long, and less than a metre wide. It has 50 different scenes of battle, running one after the other like a modern-day cartoon strip. When it was being stitched, the people making it worked on small sections or canvas material, which were then joined together to make the full-length tapestry. Every year it was hung from pillars, almost filling the main part of the Cathedral. It is not clear if this was to celebrate a special occasion or if the material just needed to be hung out to air, to ensure it did not become damp and damaged while in storage.

It was not until the late 1700s that the tapestry became a tourist attraction. First it was hung in the Louvre Museum in Paris, where it created something of a sensation. When it returned to Bayeux, it had become so famous that tourists queued to see it. Much later the local government in the town built a special museum to house the tapestry, so it could be on display all year round. There are also a number of copies of the tapestry on display in England, America and Canada, and a half-size copy has been made and is exhibited in New Zealand.

Read this article about crime novelist Patricia Cornwell, and fill in the numbered gaps by selecting A, B, C or D. Mark your answers on your answer sheet.

Patricia Cornwell

Unlike many other famous w	riters of crime fiction,	the American author P	Patricia Cornwell has 31	experience of the w	ork of police officers ar	nd criminal investigations. Before she too	ok 32	writing her thri	llers, she worked as a newspaper reporter, spe	cialising in crime stori	es. She has 33 be	en a volunteer police	officer, and had a job a	as a computer analyst in a criminal medical	examiner's office. The	refore it is 34
surprise that the heroine of h	er crime novels, Dr Ka	ay Scarpetta, is a medic	cal examiner, working on criminal investiga	ations. In this way she	can be set apart from	so many other crime writers, who place a se	rving police officer, or	possibly a private dete	ective, at the centre of their novels. Cornw	ell also draws 35	real	life for other aspects of her books. For ³⁶		, Dr Scarpetta is the C	hief Medical Examiner for Richmond, Virgi	nia, and Cornwell 37		has a home in Richmond, Virginia, as well as	a home in New York.	Her local knowledge o	of the area makes her descriptions much 38	V	vivid and personal than	those of a person who is describing a region th	ey do not know well.
There is no doubt that Cornw	ell's approach to her	writing has brought he	er a great deal of success. Her first nove	el, Postmortem , won no	o less 39	five international awards as crime	novel of the year, an	d she received the pres	stigious Gold
Dagger Award for her fourth	book, Cruel and Unusu	ual. However, readers

PART SEVEN

Read the following passage and then answer the questions, selecting True (A), False (B) or Not Mentioned in Text (C). Mark your answers on your answer sheet.

Closure of a chocolate shop

The economic recession in England was supposed to be coming to an end in the summer of 2013, but this was too late to save a much-loved chocolate shop and café in the centre of the Cheshire town of Wilmslow. Shop owner, Simon Dunn, decided that he would have to give up running the business in August, after seven years of successful trading, because the costs of maintaining his shop were rising more sharply than the income from sales.

In coming to this decision he did not only blame the financial difficulties experienced across the whole country. Other reasons leading to this decision included the rise in the price of cocoa, an essential ingredient of handmade chocolate, the increasing amount of paperwork involved in running a business, increased taxes and a change in the shopping habits of his customers.

Wilmslow is a small town, and the shopkeepers depend on local people coming in to the town to shop, perhaps taking time to enjoy a cup of coffee, and to buy a few luxury items, such as handmade chocolates and cakes, rather than doing all their shopping at out of town supermarkets. However, the price of parking has also had an impact. "Parking is a huge problem", says Mr Dunn, who believes that the ever-increasing charges being imposed by local councils have led to many people no longer choosing to come into town. "The only time we have had free parking is in the run-up to Christmas, and the rise in business is amazing", he adds.

His concerns about the future of high street shops are reflected in recent surveys carried out by the Centre for Retail Research. In 2013, one in six high street shop premises were empty, and they estimate that more than 60,000 shops will close over the next five years. This will also lead to the loss of 316,000 jobs. Their findings confirm Mr Dunn's views about the cost of parking making shoppers go to large shopping malls on the edge of town, rather than the traditional town centre high street. But there are also a number of other changes in shopping habits that are forcing small traders out of business, particularly the trend for buying online. By 2018, it is expected that about one–quarter of all our purchases will be online, rather than from a traditional high-street shop or supermarket.

Finally, while consumer spending has increased by 12% since 2006, the cost of running a business has risen by 20%. The gap seems to be increasing, leaving small shopkeepers with no choice but to close down before their losses are too great. Mr Dunn is not going out of business completely though – he has decided to continue to make luxury chocolate, but he will sell it online. So his loyal customers will still be able to buy their favourite brand of chocolate – sitting at their computer at home instead of visiting Mr Dunn in his Wilmslow shop.

PART EIGHT

Read the text "SPLAT - Insect Control Spray", then answer the questions on the next page by selecting A, B, C or D. Mark your answers on your answer sheet.

!!SPLAT!! Insect Control Spray

SPLAT Insect Spray is an effective, safe way of removing all those damaging household insects that harm your home ... wasps, ants, flies.

You name them and we will SPLAT them!

This modern chemical product comes in a safe can, with a plunge-in top, allowing you to spray the insects from a distance with a direct jet of liquid, which develops into foam on contact with a hard surface. This foam covers the insects and quickly makes them harmless. You will only need to spray once.

When using the SPLAT spray, always wear gloves, and point the spray away from your body – directing it at the insects. It is best to use the spray in the early evening, at night, or early in the morning, when the insects are not so active, and are likely to be in their nest. Do NOT use in bright sunlight when the spray may evaporate in the heat and will not be so effective.

Spray SPLAT from a distance of three metres from the insect nest, in short bursts of no more than 12 seconds. Make sure that you fully cover the nest with the foam. If you cannot see the nest, and can only see the entrance where the insects go in and out, then direct the spray jet into the opening. Do NOT try to open up the nest, as this will only disturb the insects and may lead to you being stung or bitten.

When the SPLAT can is empty, do NOT throw it away in the household rubbish. These cans MUST be taken to a recycling centre, or handed in at the shop where you bought them, so that they can be properly disposed of. The can is a pressurised container.

PLEASE NOTE SPLAT spray is only to be used for killing insects such as wasps, bees, ants, beetles etc. It is not to be used as a form of medicinal spray. If you get stung or bitten by an insect, then apply a soothing antiseptic cream. Get medical help if you suffer a serious reaction to the bite.

If you spray insects that are settled on plants, fruit, or flowers, SPLAT will kill the plants. It is not suitable for this use.

SPLAT is only effective against insects. It will not get rid of other household pests such as rats and mice.

WARNING: SPLAT could be harmful to pets such as dogs or cats, and should never come into contact with human skin. If any spray does come into contact with skin, wash the area with clean cold water immediately and if there is a severe reaction, seek medical help.

If SPLAT spray gets into your eyes, seek medical help immediately.

Store in a cool, dry place, out of reach of children and animals. Do not store for longer than a year from the date of purchase.
